I firsts met Christine when she came to the yard sale I was having, and bought a child's washboard that I used when I was a kid. Over the years since then, Chris and I saw her often, as she called to let us know of a sale. She sent us cards on various holidays, and came to the house to visit. Albert was with her and I learned that he collected buffalo nickels. She collected vintage glass. We visited her shop named Hidden Treasures and bought baskets and other items when we could. I was sorry when she closed it, but remember going to one of her yard sales at her house. She was a friend worth having, and I was devastated to learn of her passing.

Christine, You accepted me as one of your grandchildren. You treated me like family. You called me your "little rascal" and were always teasing me about when I was gonna get married. I will cherish those moments. Thank you for being a friend and a grandmother to me. Rest in Peace Rascal.
